

Sample KYC Analyst Source of Wealth Narrative — Post Validation

Purpose: This sample represents the Source of Wealth narrative that a KYC analyst may draft after completing document review, validation checks, screening review, and corroboration for Profile A: Business Sale. It is intended for POC demonstration only and should be aligned to the bank's approved KYC narrative template before production use.

1. Case Summary

The customer, Arun Mehta, is being onboarded as a new individual wealth customer under Profile A: Business Sale. The customer has declared that the majority of his wealth was generated through the sale of his majority shareholding and operating interests in Orchid Digital Services Pte. Ltd., a Singapore-based technology consulting and managed services business. The declared sale consideration is SGD 18,500,000, with the sale agreement dated 15 March 2026 and closing scheduled for 30 April 2026. The expected initial funding into the wealth account is SGD 5,000,000, to be remitted from sale proceeds after closing.

2. Documents and Information Reviewed

- Customer onboarding application form and Source of Wealth declaration.
- Business sale agreement dated 15 March 2026 between Orchid Digital Services Pte. Ltd. and Northbridge Capital Holdings Pte. Ltd.
- Company ownership records confirming the customer's majority interest in Orchid Digital Services Pte. Ltd.
- Audited financial statements and dividend records supporting retained business income and historical wealth accumulation.
- Bank statement or transaction evidence showing receipt of the sale deposit, where available.
- Tax assessment or tax filing summary relating to business income and sale proceeds, where available.
- Screening results for sanctions, PEP/RCA, and adverse media.

3. Source of Wealth Assessment

The customer's declared Source of Wealth is considered plausible and sufficiently supported for the POC scenario. The business sale agreement provides primary evidence of the sale transaction, including the seller, buyer, transaction date, closing date, asset transfer basis, and total consideration. The declared purchase price of SGD 18,500,000 is consistent with the customer's Source of Wealth declaration and onboarding form. The declared wealth composition attributes approximately 70% of overall wealth to business sale proceeds, 20% to retained business income and dividends, and 10% to long-term investment returns.

From a materiality perspective, diligence was focused primarily on the business sale as the largest and most recent wealth-generating event. Supporting documents for retained business income and dividends were reviewed as secondary corroboration to establish that the customer had an established business ownership history and did not rely solely on unsupported self-attestation. The investment-return component is comparatively less material and has been treated as supplementary, subject to brokerage and bank statement support where required by policy.

4. Source of Funds Assessment

The expected initial Source of Funds for the new wealth relationship is SGD 5,000,000, expected to be funded from the business sale closing proceeds. The funding rationale is consistent with the declared Source of Wealth, the sale agreement, and the customer's stated liquidity event. Prior to account funding, Operations should confirm the remitting account name, remitting bank, payment reference, and whether the transfer originates from the Buyer, escrow account, or the customer's personal account after receipt of sale proceeds.

5. Screening and Risk Review

Check	Result	Analyst Comment
Sanctions screening	No confirmed match	No sanctions concerns identified in POC screening output.
PEP / RCA screening	No confirmed PEP/RCA status	Customer declaration and screening output are aligned.
Adverse media	No material adverse media identified	No negative news materially affecting onboarding risk identified in POC output.
ID and address verification	Passed / no exception noted	Identity and address details are consistent with submitted application data.

6. Validation Outcome

The customer's declared Source of Wealth has been validated to a reasonable and risk-proportionate standard for the POC. The material wealth event, namely the business sale, is supported by transaction documentation. The ownership link between the customer and the business is supported by company ownership records. The customer's historical wealth build-up is further supported by business income and dividend evidence. No material inconsistency was identified between the onboarding form, Source of Wealth declaration, and the business sale agreement.

7. Residual Risks and Follow-Up Items

- Confirm receipt of the closing payment once the transaction completes.

- Validate the remitting account and payment path for the initial deposit before funding the wealth account.
- Obtain tax documentation or tax adviser confirmation if required by internal policy for large business sale proceeds.
- Refresh screening if account opening occurs after the bank’s permitted screening validity period.

8. Analyst Recommendation

Based on the information reviewed and validations completed, the customer’s Source of Wealth is assessed as reasonably established. The business sale is a plausible and sufficiently corroborated primary wealth source, and no material screening concerns have been identified. Subject to confirmation of the actual funding path and any required tax documentation, the case may proceed to checker and compliance review with a preliminary risk rating of Medium, reflecting the high-value liquidity event and private banking onboarding context, but without current sanctions, PEP/RCA, or adverse media concerns.
